

U.S. Tariff Wall Affects Canada Most Favorably

Sam. Goodman Traces Development of Protection

MEETING DISCUSSES RECIPROCAL TRADE

Establishment of Free Commerce Improbable and Undesirable, Says Ross

The history of the American tariff and its effect upon Canada were thoroughly discussed at the meeting of the Political Economy Club last night. The subject of the evening, "U.S. Tariff Legislation in its Reactions on Canada" was treated in two papers given by S. J. Goodman and Howard Ross.

The first speaker, Goodman, confined himself chiefly to the actual history of the American tariff, describing the evolution of the famous United States high protection system. He showed that the American republic first imposed a tariff for revenue purposes alone. This later developed into a regular protective system, although at various periods there have been definite moves toward free trade.

Reciprocal Treaties
Goodman went on to speak of the different reciprocal agreements into which the United States have entered. In every case the agreement has brought a distinct advantage to the U.S.A. In fact the speaker remarked that it is rather a characteristic of the American nation to demand concessions from others while they themselves are unwilling to concede the slightest advantage to weaker countries. The last part of the paper dealt with the provisions of recent tariff bills that have affected Canadian interests.

Goodman concluded by stating the opinion that the American high protection system has been of use to Canada in that it has impelled her to develop a system of her own, and to tend to become more independent economically of the United States.

How Canada Reacted
Ross, the second speaker, first traced the reaction of Canada to the American tariff legislation. He showed how when the Dominion was in its infancy, it had to make tariffs on many American products in retaliation to the tariff policy of the United States, thereby forcing Canada to produce much of her own manufactured products, and thus promoting the growth of Canadian industry. He showed, too, that the U.S.A. Tariff is highest where it has least effect on Canada, and it was his opinion that the effects are greatly overestimated. The speaker then described the origin and development of the U.S.A. Tariff Commission, which, he said, would go far to make the tariff conform to the real needs of the country. When this happens, he declared, most of the grievances of Canada will disappear. But the Commission is in its infancy, and consequently its effects

Civils Are Expected To Spread Terror In The Ranks Of Local Taxi-Drivers After Noon Today

Considerable commotion will be caused among taxi-drivers and other motorists who happen to pass the corner of University and Sherbrooke Streets after twelve o'clock today. The reason for this will be their consternation on seeing men stationed at each corner, crouching over notebooks, and noting the numbers of passing cars with hawk-like eyes.

Drivers will turn pale and ask one another, "Are they spotters? Are they out to nab us?" and busy truck-drivers will be so subdued that when they crawl home at night they won't even have the heart to beat their wives. The more timid taxi-drivers will probably scream with fright, and spend the rest of the day looking for a roundabout route. Pedestrians, on the other hand, will beam contentedly and go their way whistling, while babies will sit up in their carriages and drool happily.

But what would the public say if they were told that these men were only third-year Civil Engineering students making their annual traffic survey under the direction of Prof. French, who so ably defeated the Arts '30 team?

CONTRIBUTION FROM WOMEN SENDS APPEAL BOUNDING

FROM all sources come the donations that are swelling the Daily's Fund for the Relief of Bulgarian Students. Rumours that had been current for some while were confirmed yesterday when a check for fifty dollars was received from the McGill Women Students' Society.

The hundred mark around which the fund had closed on the previous night was passed with a tremendous leap and the path made clear for a steady advance toward the next one. Monday had brought news from the Medical Undergraduate Society that they had received the idea with much favour and had promised a representative aim if their social festival of the future was financially successful. Reports from other colleges in the Dominion show that the lead of McGill has been taken by other student bodies, but it is well to note that the appeal is not being made only to Canadian students but that American colleges, English universities, in fact all universities the world over are uniting for the aid and relief of the students in Bulgaria.

Maccabaeans Meet Sunday

Three McGill Grads to Address Circle

ALUMNI GATHER

Debaters For Varsity Menorah Contest Also to Be Chosen

Sunday afternoon, Feb. 2, will see the members of the Maccabaeans Circle gather in the McGill Union to attend its annual alumni meeting. The program will be in the hands of McGill graduates, three of whom will deliver a symposium on the lives and philosophy of Maimonides and Mendelssohn. The session will start at 3 o'clock sharp.

At this meeting a team to represent the Maccabaeans Circle in its annual debate with the Toronto Menorah Society will be chosen. The debate will be held at Toronto this year. In the past six years since the competition was inaugurated, McGill has emerged victorious four times. Last year the Toronto debaters carried the Bennett Cup, emblematic of victory, back to Toronto; and the Circle is very anxious to regain the coveted trophy. All those interested in the selection of McGill's debaters are asked to be in attendance at Sunday's meeting.

Hold Symposium
The subject of the symposium is an attempt to interest the Maccabaeans Circle in a topic of historical nature rather than the repetition of trite clichés involved in the use of a current topic. The philosophy of Maimonides and of Mendelssohn is just as much alive today as it was when these men lived. The controversy between the old generation and its conservative predilections and youth with its ebullitions raged with as debaters the other day? What would they say if told that the survey would only last for twenty-four hours, in two-hour shifts, in order to gather data necessary to make a study of traffic conditions in this part of the city? What would they say? Why, they'd probably smile knowingly enough to know a police-trap when they saw one? Especially the taxi-drivers.

A few years ago, when making this survey, the two to four a.m. shift saw a group of tough looking taxi-drivers creeping towards them from a nearby stand. These lads, forming a ring around the students, inquired just what the h— they meant by it. The Civils, being greatly outnumbered, could do nothing but try to convince them with patient explanations. It took much argument, and the drawing of many little diagrams, to make these high-class bandits give up the scheme of hanging them from the Roddick Gate with a tower-pole.

At noon tomorrow, however, the survey will be over for this year, and motorists passing the corner will stare unbelievably at first, and then French, who so ably defeated the Arts '30 team.

Manitoba has arranged that a tag day shall be held on St. Valentine's Day. Toronto has made plans that a tag day should be held about the middle of February. U.N.B. and others are about to fall in line with the International appeal.

Realising the nature of the cause students who ordinarily could not have afforded to give have made plans for a real sacrifice on their part. Rumour has it that one student has sworn off visiting Murray's at night for a month, turning over the money which will be saved. Again there are words that say that another has given up cigarettes for a month. Some one has stated that absolution from the Whispering Gallery may be bought with a price, but efforts to find the Dragon and his cohorts has proved fruitless, so that the sale of indulgences cannot be corroborated.

A committee of students representatives of the various groups of the University has met and in planning out ways and means whereby the McGill total may be in a position to compare favourably with those of other universities.

Annual Write-ups And Photographs Must Be Sent In

Every year the McGill Annual is held up because of the carelessness or inefficiency of those who delay their pictures or write-ups.

While the majority of persons concerned have co-operated this year, there are still some tardy ones, and all such are strongly advised to act on this notice:

(1) The Annual Board will positively not accept any write-ups after Wednesday, February 12.

(2) Notman's have been instructed to make no further arrangements for individual or group photographs after Friday, February 7, Jan. 30, 1930.

(Signed) J. A. Edmondson, Editor-in-Chief.

much intensity in the eleventh century when Maimonides lived and in the eighteenth when Mendelssohn was alive, as it does today. It will be interesting to note the possibility of applying their respective outlooks to our own times.

The three speakers who will constitute Sunday's program, are keen

EARLIEST PRINTING IS HELD ON VIEW

Dr. Lomer Directed Exhibition in Library

Rare examples of earliest printing, beginning with the middle of the fifteenth century, and a large number of prints from original wood-cuts by famous European artists, are now being exhibited in the Bodleian library.

One of the most interesting exhibits is the "Gutenberg" Bible, printed in Germany between the years 1550 and 1555. Immediately after printing was introduced into Germany, there is also a magnificent display of leaves taken from famous books of the 15th century, showing the great skill in illustrative art, which had been attained by manuscript makers and early book-printers. Delicately coloured wood-cuts were used, while capital letters at the beginning of chapters were drawn by hand, with remarkable skill, and ingenuity. This is the first exhibition of such work in Montreal.

Besides these specimens of the early printers' work, there are also a number of prints from the original wood-blocks of Albrecht Dürer, Hans Burgkmair, and other famous European artists.

These examples of printing are perhaps the finest in Canada, with the exception of the incunabula (a book printed in early times of printing, usually before 1550) of the Osler Library at McGill.

All the material in the exhibition has been selected from the Bodleian Library and arranged under the direction of Dr. Lomer. The exhibition will remain open until the end of March.

Arts '31 Meeting

Meta's 'imilar To Plant Life, Says Lecturer

Possess Internal Activity, Beauty of Design, and Pathology

ARE CRYSTALLINE

Diseases Alter Hardness, Though Chemical Composition Unchanged

"Metals are in some respects analogous to plants and animal life. They possess internal activity, beauty of color and design, and are attached by diseases," stated Harold J. Roast, Lecturer in Metallurgy, in opening his address on "The Inner Life and Activity of Metals," at the Mechanical Institute last night.

By means of micro-photographic slides Mr. Roast illustrated how internal activity takes place in metals.

"All metals are crystalline in structure," said the lecturer. "Soft normal iron consists of relatively large crystals bound together by comparatively small amounts of interstitial substance. If I were to ask where such iron would be likely to break, the general answer would probably be that it would crack along the interstitial lines. Actually the interstitial substance forms the hardest part of the metal and consequently any break would actually occur along the lines of cleavage of the crystals themselves."

Result of Tempering

"Now if we were to heat some of this soft iron," continued the speaker, "and then plunge it suddenly into cold water, the result of the chilling would be to break the large crystals into many smaller ones, with a corresponding increase in interstitial substance. Hence the iron would be very much harder, or, as we usually term it 'tempered'. This indicates a rearrangement of crystals or evidence of internal activity in the metal."

Mr. Roast then showed a series of slides which clearly demonstrated the delicate structure of metal alloys, describing at the same time the artistic colors which characterize them.

Diseases of Metals

"The diseases of metals," said Mr. Roast in conclusion, "are represented by attacks of other metals by infiltration, as bismuth will undermine copper, or by processes such as oxidation. The interstitial substances, which might be described as the backbone of the internal structure of metals, is gradually replaced by the softer bismuth or oxides, weakening it materially. Bars of tin, exposed to sub-zero temperatures over a long period, succumb to what might be termed frost-bite, which transforms it from a hard, shiny metal into a white powder, exactly the same in chemical composition, but entirely different in physical properties."

After the lecture proper the audience was invited to ask any questions which interested them on the subject, and a score of enlightening points were settled to the satisfaction of the questioners.

CHORAL SOCIETY TO HOLD DINNER

Good Entertainment is Promised at Annual Event

The best practice of the season, in the opinion of the Committee, was held by the Choral Society in Strathcona Hall last night, when they worked through some eight part songs. Work is to be started on the concert version of the opera Faust in the near future.

It was announced by the select committee that the Annual Dinner will take place on Thursday, February 6th, at 6.30 p.m., in the S.C.A. Room in Strathcona Hall. There will be a short rehearsal, followed by a dance. Members will be privileged to bring one friend, and tickets can be obtained from Miss Dodds, who is the convener on this occasion.

Novelty dancers will add to the zip, zest and zowie of the entertainment which will also be helped by Max Ford who is in charge of the "synopicated arrangements."

The Committee did not make the usual appeal for a large attendance, for there is sure to be one—but just in case—February 6th, is the date—and one friend! Contrailos will be especially welcomed.

Man Not Mere Animal, Decide R.V.C. Debaters

MAN may, with assistance rise superior to the call of food, was the decision reached yesterday in the first round of the annual debating contest for freshmen. On the subject, "Resolved that the quickest way to a man's heart is through his stomach," I. Dawson and E. Steinberg, the negative team, defeated I. Herselman and H. Hendery.

Two other teams, debating at the same time on the same subject, arrived independently at a similar conclusion, when A. Barnes and M. Gowan overpersuaded M. Lynch and C. Hobbs.

All the speakers showed considerable skill in argument, the judges remarked, and the future rounds of the competition promise to provide great interest for the audiences and mighty contests for the debaters.

Recital Charmed Music Admirers

Graduate of Conservatorium Played to Large Audience

WELL APPLAUDED

Miss Stark Displayed Skill and Feeling in Performance

The violin recital given last night by Miss Ethel Stark in Windsor Hall met with a warm reception. Montreal music lovers turned out in force; and their interest and anticipation were shown in the crowded hall and the array of flowers which graced the platform at the opening of the performance, and which was added to at each interim.

From first to last Miss Stark compelled the closest attention of her audience. Her program was so arranged that no taste could be wearied or disappointed. THE Concerto in "A" Minor by Bach with its variations from allegro moderato to andante and then to the andante assai, was followed by the Baal Shem by Bloch, with its deep feeling of pagan worship. Throughout, the performance displayed a well-balanced alternation of technical skill and emotional interpretation.

Miss Stark won the enthusiastic applause of her audience, especially for the Grande Adagio; and at the close of the recital she was prevailed upon to give an encore.

Miss Stark was ably accompanied at the piano by Mr. Saldenberg. The following is the complete program:

- Program
1. Concerto "A" Minor Bach
 2. Allegro Moderato Andante
 3. Allegro Assai
 4. a. Baal Shem Bloch
 5. "Nigun"
 6. Grand Adagio Glazounov
 7. Saltarelle Wieniawski
 8. Poeme Ciausson
 9. Concerto "A" Minor Vieuxtemps
 10. Allegro non Troppo
 11. Adagio
 12. Allegro Con Fuoco

The train leaves Bonaventure Station tomorrow at 1.25 and arrives at St. Illaire at 2.30. From St. Illaire there is a short drive to the Ile aux Cerfs. Coming home again the train leaves St. Illaire at 7.31, and arrives in Montreal at 8.55.

All students who wish to make the trip are asked to hand in their names immediately to the R.V.C. Physical Education office.

TORONTO CHAIRMAN, ALAN FERRY, STOPS "VARSITY" PRESSES

Removes Streamer Headline Stating That Deposition of W. J. Dunlop, Publicity Director, Is Urged.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS DUNLOP BE REPLACED BY STAFF MEMBERS

Was Assailed Last Year For Trying To Control "Varsity" By L. J. Ryan, Whose Charges Are Now Vindicated

(Special to McGill Daily by G. G. Brooks, "Varsity" Exchange Editor)

ALAN H. FERRY, Chairman of the joint Executive of the Students' Administrative Councils of the University of Toronto, on his own authority stopped the presses of the "Varsity" last night and removed a streamer headline reading, "Urges W. J. Dunlop's Removal From Joint Council," to which he objected.

W. J. Dunlop, who is Director of Extension and Publicity, would be directly affected by a decision which might be made if the recommendation of the Caput Committee on Student Government were followed.

The Committee recommended that "the two staff members appointed annually by the President of the University under clause 4, subsection 4, of the constitution of the joint executive, be members of the permanent teaching staff of the University."

Daily Picture Will Be Taken Next Monday

The photograph of the editorial staff of the Daily will be taken at Notman's, 2025 Peel St., on Monday at 5 o'clock sharp. It is urged all to whom this applies will make a point to keep this hour free, and will check off their names on the list in the Daily office.

MRS RILEY WAS SPEAKER AT TEA

Colleges Should Have Vocational Guidance Committees

"In my opinion, there is great need for a vocational guidance committee for women in college," said Mrs. George Riley at the second o'clock meeting of the S.C.A. of R.V.C., during a talk on "Careers for Women." She gave the results of the questionnaire, 57 of which had been answered and sent in.

She regretted that most of the girls had been influenced by family pressure or by financial returns, and that consequently most of the girls in college were following the line of least resistance. This would be obviated by the establishment of a vocational guidance committee. The questionnaire revealed that, of the 22 girls, who expected to teach, only 3 were going to do through love of teaching; the rest hope for financial gains.

The questionnaire showed that 4 girls wanted a stage career, and 8 wanted some literary profession. Mrs. Riley reminded them that employers in the U.S.A. showed a great liking for Canadians with a higher education. The important part for girls in obtaining their positions, is the contacts which they form.

Several girls wanted to become nurses, and Mrs. Riley told them of the increasing field for medical and social workers, both at home and

W. J. Dunlop was assailed by the "Varsity" last year, under the editorship of L. J. Ryan, for attempting to control the "Varsity." The report of the Committee, which is composed of Dean Delury of the Faculty of Arts, Provost Cosgrave of Trinity College, and Dean McMurrich of the School of Graduate Studies, is a complete vindication of the charges made by Ryan last year.

It is understood that W. J. Dunlop himself has declared that the wording of the headline in question was a justifiable deduction from the report of the committee.

Three Clauses

The other recommendations made by the Committee were as follows:

(1) That the joint executive of the Students' Administrative Councils be made responsible to the Students' Administrative Councils, reporting at regular intervals to each of the Councils.

(2) That the Advisory Board of Student Publications be discontinued and its work assigned to the joint Executive of the Students' Administrative Councils.

(3) That the Editor of "The Varsity" and the Editor of "Toronto" be to be members of the joint Executive, but shall not have the right to vote at meetings of the joint Executive.

The editor of the "Varsity" in an editorial takes exception to the second recommendation as tending to destroy the freedom of editorial speech.

ARTS '32 ENJOYS TOBOGGAN PARTY

Good Sliding and Dancing Make Successful Evening

Twenty-five members of the Arts '32 Sophomore Class made merry with their fair companions at the toboggan party held at the Park Slide last night.

It was a clear cold starlight night, with the vestige of the new moon, and conditions were perfect. "They could not have been better!" "Oh boy, simply wonderful!" "Gee" was how members of the party expressed their approval of the slide on which the speed of 70 m.p.h. was sometimes reached by the sliders.

Between the runs, coffee, tea, cocoa and biscuits were enjoyed in the clubhouse, and as the slide gradually became deserted dancers began to gather round the radio.

The meeting was voted a great success by all present and the hope is expressed that the party will be repeated in the future.

Another Step Up.

WE are pleased to announce that the Women Students' Society has followed the admirable lead given by the Students' Council with regard to the Daily's Bulgarian Student Fund. Their contribution of fifty dollars, received yesterday, put the fund well on its way for the next notch.

News has been received that the appeal for the fund in other universities is well under way. Toronto while usually having a tag day for the I.S.S. have made the stress of the appeal this year upon the Bulgarian side of the question, and will be having their tag day and appeal during February. Manitoba has sent for particulars and have planned that St. Valentine's Day would be a fitting time for their tag day. Indirect news points to the fact that others are following the lead. It is for McGill having set the lead to keep it up.

Claim has been made on the part of one student that Bulgaria should be crushed as she will be the cause of the next war. We sympathise with anyone who can take that attitude for he is decidedly out of date, and while we do not follow up with the remark that he should live in the days when such ideas were appropriate, we hope that his next few years at McGill will give him a more comprehensive outlook upon life so that he may discard his insular attitude.

Sentimentality was the retort of another who suggested that if the conditions were existing in Lachine there would be no appeal made. We think that if the same state of affairs were existing in Lachine then we would be seriously affected ourselves for the locality is not restricted to one small section. In the hypothetical case we as students would not be reticent in our part of the work, and why should we make the issue of distance one of retraction.

The appeal is being supported in the main up to the present by executives of groups, but we feel that to be a true reflection of the cosmopolitan spirit of McGill the contributions should be personal as well. A committee of students representative of groups of the University has met and are deciding upon ways and means to promote the fund.

What Do You Read?

ASK the average person that you know, "What kind of books do you read?" and you will usually get the vague answer, "Oh, anything." Once in a long while one finds a person who has more or less definite tastes in literature, who knows what kind of books he has read in the last year, and what ones he intends to read next.

It is a good plan to check up on yourself once in a while by trying to make out a list of everything that you have read in the last two or three months. We know a friend of ours who keeps the name of every book he has read, its author, publisher, date of publication, number of pages, and a host of other details. While it is not necessary to go to such pains as this, it is surprising how jotting down what you have read will make you change your ideas of the type of your own literary browsing.

System in reading often produces good results, as it does in other fields. If you hear of something that you would really like to read put it down on your list, or if you wish to follow up a certain subject, put down the names of whatever books dealing with it that you wish to go through.

Such a system will in a surprisingly short time will alter your habits of reading. Instead of wasting an evening glancing through a mass of literature in which you are not particularly interested, knowing that you have a list of works that you would like to dip into will tend to make you read them instead. And you will have the satisfaction of knowing that you are reading with a definite plan in mind, reading what you want to read.

Needless to say, such a plan is useless if it is not followed completely and thoroughly, but we think that its results will show that it is worth trying.

The "McGill Daily"

By W. E. G. Murray, Founder and First Editor of this paper, now in its 19th year. This article was written by Mr. Murray, who now lives in London, England, for the Graduates' Number on Wednesday, but arrived too late for inclusion in that issue.

As the one who was privileged to be the founder and first editor of the "McGill Daily," it has given me particular pleasure to observe the expanding influence and prosperity of the journal during the past eighteen years.

The fallacy of "the good old days" has been irretrievably exposed by no-one more effectively than by Professor Stephen Leacock himself. A ridiculous idealisation of the achievements of a previous generation is happily no longer the vogue. The McGill Daily is to-day a firmly established, well organised professionally handled newspaper. Eighteen years ago the most strenuous amateur effort did indeed produce a newspaper, but not always every day and not frequently a good newspaper. As I cast my mind back in an attempt to reconstruct the conditions and achievements of 1912, the period itself seems tremendously remote, probably due to the amiable diversions that occupied fairly general attention between 1914 and 1918. Much of the detail is blurred; yet main impressions are still vivid.

In the year 1912 undergraduate activity at McGill was at the peak of a renaissance. After some years of ill-success in sport, there was a sudden and general revival. McGill was literally "sweeping the boards" in all branches of Inter-University competition. There was everywhere in evidence a new spirit of activity. Every undergraduate organization that I can recall adopted a forward policy. It was only natural, therefore, that there should be recognition of the need for an active, progressive organ of opinion. The old weekly paper "The Martlet" had done excellent work, but by its nature, "The Martlet" was hardly adequate to give expression to the new era. When, therefore, the editorship of "The Martlet" was entrusted to me, I had to consider seriously how to adapt it to the new conditions. There was, of course, long and anxious discussion and, in the end, the most adventurous policy was approved. But the inauguration of the "McGill Daily" was very definitely experimental. In the midst of a general atmosphere of activity and optimism there were many who looked with grave misgiving on such an undertaking. The paper had to be written, edited, and managed without professional assistance. The whole staff were undergraduates carrying on their academic work, or attempting to do so. One's normal procedure was to attend lectures during the morning and in the early afternoon, then towards evening to begin the task of preparing the next day's paper. This went on until between 2:00 and 2:30 in the morning, at which time the paper went to press. Such routine in retrospect seems singularly arduous, but the circumstances and the stimulus were more singular. From the first appearance of the paper, despite the misgivings of the more conservative element, it was warmly welcomed as yet another symbol of the new era in University life. That the innumerable difficulties of the first few months were surmounted was due to a combination of a buoyant and optimistic environment with a realisation that the project was a real challenge of faith.

The right function of such a newspaper is best realised by a study of what the "McGill Daily" has meant to McGill. First of all, its existence is a guarantee of the easy and rapid circulation of news of university activity. It makes the task of every organizer of undergraduate activity infinitely easier. Then, on the policy side, it focuses, renders coherent, and effective, the aims and ideals of the Students' Council. But what appears to me to be even more important is its influence upon morale. The undergraduate community of McGill is recruited, not only from all parts of the American Continent, but also from across the Seven Seas. The opportunities of establishing a community consciousness are not as favourable at McGill as they are in wholly residential centres of learning. I believe that the "McGill Daily" is an even greater instrument in encouraging community consciousness than even the excellent institution of the Union. Do not misunderstand what I mean by community consciousness. It is not merely the spirit which makes possible "effective rooting" at football games, it is the acceptance with all its implications, of the tradition of Alma Mater, the realisation that in this microcosm of that enlightened society which is the only legitimate aim of civilisation, stark and selfish individualism has no place. The "McGill Daily" symbolises same co-operative effect and the community spirit.

Correspondence

The Editor,
McGill Daily.

Dear Sir:

A McGill Stamp Club would be a most desirable organization on this campus. I heartily agree with the writer of the editorial "Hobby Clubs" on that score. Without doubt, the student body includes a large number of devotees to that hobby and it would take very little to coordinate them into a strong organization. I know of several professors, too, who I am sure would be interested in such an organization.

If a couple more people will write to you, supporting such an organization surely at least a start can be made this year. Stamp Collectors, let's hear from you!

Sincerely,
J.M.

INSPIRATION came late last night to the Daily Dragon, deep in his lair at the office, 650 Sherbrooke Street, West, but, thanks to the Bell Telephone Co., fictitious names in gentle zephyrs wafted to him from the lips of several of his cohorts, fresh from downtown hostilities the dawn broke.

have not been very much felt as yet. It is generally recognized, stated the speaker, that complete reciprocity between the two countries would be practically impossible, since that would lead to commercial union and possibly political union. And since Canada did enter into a union with the United States when such a union would have been of great material benefit, it is unlikely that she would consider such a proposition now that she is on her own feet.

Reasons For Protection

Ross was in favour of the maintenance of the tariff walls on the following ground:

1. Canada's trade has increased amazingly under the present system.
2. Practically all the advantages which the United States has over Canada are acquired. It therefore seems reasonable to expect that with a sound tariff Canada should be able to build up industries that will successfully compete in the world market.

3. America's advantage in having a greater coal supply is gradually diminishing with the introduction of electric power.

4. The great potential wealth of the tourist trade depends largely on the height of the American tariff. Any reciprocal agreement would tend to nip this trade in the bud.

5. As the Tariff Commission begins to function properly, the American tariff will become more reasonable and will be less of a hindrance to Canadian imports.

The meeting was then thrown open to discussion.

Professor Culliton was the only member of the staff present.

Interfaculty Boxing and Wrestling Assault in McGill Union Tonight

FORBES OFFICIALLY APPOINTED COACH

Athletic Board Came To Final Decision Yesterday

SENIOR SQUAD GAVE VOTE OF CONFIDENCE

New Appointee Had Distinguished Career During Undergraduate Days

MAJOR D. Stuart Forbes, was named honorary coach of the senior football squad by the Athletic Board at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. The appointment of Major Forbes to the highest coaching position McGill has to offer, had been expected for the last four weeks, his name being favorably mentioned among undergraduates and graduates, but the appointment did not become official until yesterday afternoon when the Athletic Board received the report of the special committee, and agreed on Major Forbes in preference to the numerous applicants for the position from Canada and the United States.

Prior to the Athletic Board meeting the special committee placed the result of their findings before the members of the senior rugby squad at luncheon Wednesday. The squad passed an unanimous vote of confidence in favour of the Major.

The selection of Major Forbes marks the third change in McGill coaching circles in as many years. In the fall of 1927, Frank Shaughnessy dropped the reins after presiding over McGill football affairs since 1912. A graduate coaching board took over the direction of the team in the fall of 1928, with Dr. Lorne C. Montgomery as its head, but with Dr. J. C. Flanagan as active coach. The squad gained its first intercollegiate title in nine years under that regime. Last fall, A. Burridge was named coach in collaboration with the graduates coaching board. The showing of the team due to injuries and other causes, drew the attention of undergraduates and graduates and Mr. Burridge's resignation was accepted.

Senior Cagemen To Meet Queen's

Tricolor Here On Saturday Night in M.H.S. Gym

With one victory stowed away, the McGill senior basketball team will be out to gain the lead in the intercollegiate race when they stack up against the Queen's cagers at the High School gym tomorrow night. Coach Van Wagner's second stringers are scheduled to face the Y.M. H.A. seniors in the first game of the evening.

With two such excellent tilts on the program there should be very little space left in the High gym when activities get under way at 8 o'clock. Both Queen's and McGill have aroused a great deal of interest in this city and opinion on the outcome of tomorrow's struggle is about evenly divided.

The McGill coach will put his men through a light shooting drill this afternoon and the Red and White cagers will then have time on their hands until the start of the intercollegiate tussle.

It will be remembered that last year the scarlet-clad hoopster dropped their first game with the Tricolor in Montreal, but it will also be remembered that they gained sweet revenge when they soundly trounced the Presbyterian College squad in the Limestone City. Almost the same players are represented on both teams this season.

THE scene is set, and the competitors ready for the long awaited preliminaries of the College Assault. At eight o'clock this evening the contestants will be shaking hands in the new ring in the ball-room of the McGill Union. The B.W.&F. Club are anticipating a large crowd, and have arranged for seating accommodation for several hundred. At the same time students will be wise to be on hand a few minutes before eight, for no doubt standing room will be at a premium.

Bill Jakin, the B.W.&F. manager, announced last night that Sir Arthur Currie had consented to be present for the finals on Saturday night. He also announced the list of officials. Mr. Joe Glickman, Dr. Harry Condon and Mr. Marshall Wolfkill, all three well known in sporting circles, will act as judges for the boxing. Coach Bert Light will referee the bouts himself. Mr. Deucaire, who refereed the intercollegiate wrestling here three years ago, will fulfill the same office for the matmen tonight. Mr. A. B. Hamilton and Mr. R. F. Egan have consented to act as judges. Dr. Cyrus MacMillan and Dr. Sullivan, both ardent supporters of the fistie art, will act as time-keepers. Mr. Beverley Pattincombe, a McGill graduate will fill the position of Master of ceremonies.

Coroner's Court

It is with great pleasure indeed that we hear of the official appointment of a new coach for the McGill Senior Football squad. This position will be filled by none other than Major Stuart Forbes, former McGill student and athlete, and prominent in local athletic circles.

MAJOR FORBES TO COACH RUGBY SQUAD

The appointment of Major Forbes as honorary coach for the 1930 season once and for all closes the coaching problem that has been bothering the Athletic Board for past several weeks or so. With the choice of the Major to fill the bill, we hereby offer our sincerest congratulations to one who has been connected with McGill athletics for some time and at the same time we earnestly hope that his efforts next fall will be attended with success.

It is evident to many that the Major is the logical choice for this position. Formerly a McGill student, reared with that McGill spirit that has characterized many of our graduates and having borne the red and white colours in many an athletic contest, the Major is undoubtedly the right man to remould a red rugby machine that has been lingering in the rut for some time, save the 1928 success.

To-night the McGill boxers and wrestlers will demonstrate their wares before the student body when the annual college assault will be held in the McGill Union ballroom.

COLLEGE ASSAULT TO-NIGHT
Adequate accommodation has been made to satisfy the huge crowd that will see this year's red and white mat men endeavour to uphold their respective faculty honours and at the same time bid for positions on the B.W. & F. squad that will enter in the intercollegiate assault in a few weeks. To-night's meet should be productive of some keenly contested bouts on the part of the boxers and wrestlers who have been training conscientiously for some time, in hopes of making the intercollegiate team.

McGill Puckmen Play Clarkson

Seniors Clash With U.S. Squad Tonight

AT POTSDAM, N. Y.

NINE players, and Manager McCue, comprising the McGill Senior Hockey squad, left early this morning for the Bonaventure Station for Potsdam, N.Y., where the redmen meet Clarkson Tech to-night in the only international intercollegiate contest while the McGill men engage in this year.

As far as can be learnt the Clarkson sextet are rated as one of the finest hockey combinations yet to be produced by any American college. If their string of 33 victories out of 35 in the last three years is to be taken as any criterion. The McGill squad has not made any appearance in U.S. territory since their Christmas invasion of 1928, and for the most part seem to be considered as the proverbial "dark horse". For to-night's contest Ralph St. Germain will lead the red and white rushes from centre flanked by Robertson and Farquharson at the wing positions. McGillvray and Hutchins will start at the defence, while Powers, the old reliable, will guard the nets. Granger, Bell, and Painter will act as relief men.

All in all to-night's contest will take on a more or less international aspect, with the redmen hitting their best form at present, James McGill's proteges will be out to make a favorable impression in American territory. The "Daily" will receive a full account of the game for to-morrow's issue by direct wire from the Clarkson rinkside, by staff correspondent.

College Boxers And Wrestlers Meet Tonight

Keen Interest

The winners of to-nights fights will fight it out for the College Championships on Saturday night. A glance at the program will show that the bouts to-night will be no pink tea affair and that also some of the best boxers who have performed at McGill for some time will be fighting to bring their Faculty to the front. And not only will they be fighting for their Faculty, but they will also be fighting to make places on the Intercollegiate team.

The final winners will journey to the University of New Hampshire next week-end to match gloves with the pugilists there, and then on the fifteenth of February they will invade the Ottawa Y.M.C.A.

It is not going to be any soft snap for the men who will wear red and white. One week after they return from Ottawa they will be at home to boxers from Queen's and Varsity to decide the Intercollegiate champions of 1930.

McGill has not won the Intercollegiate boxing since 1923, and this year looks like her big chance. Bert Light has rounded out a smooth working class, who are in the pink of condition, and who already have proved their worth against the strong Y.M.C.A. squad this year.

To-night is the night to keep open for the boxing. Every class is very keenly contested, and the winners are a toss up. Some old familiar faces will be seen, and what is even better, there is quite a bit of new blood in the squad. Every bout will be packed full of nine minutes of one of the hardest and fastest sports in the world, and standing toe to toe, ducking, swinging, and guarding calls for the very best in condition.

The old Union hall-room has heard and seen many different things. Last week at this time it heard the slow, lazy rhythm of a dance orchestra. No doubt there will be some in the hall-room to-night who will hear the sweet chirping of birds. It is absolutely certain that at least the old room to-night will hear the roar and applause of the crowd, after the two contestants have ceased hostilities and become friends once more.

Action Expected

The meet tonight should bring plenty of thrills. In the 112 lb. class, Prefontaine will box Tannenbaum. The winner will fight Kussener the Intercollegiate champion on Saturday night. Whoever wins, Kussener is going to have to work hard to maintain his laurels. Samson, who was runner-up to Tam Fyvie in the 118 lb. class last year, will meet Shallcross. Both boys are in A1 condition and the fight should bear some bright spots. Paul Samson looks better than a runner-up this year. In the 126 lb. class, Banfield meets Bernstein who will be remembered as a hard hitter from his exhibition last year. Gib, Craig, the 135 lb. College champion, will fight an exhibition as will Bud Porteous. Both these boys are holding their punches for Macgregor and Minion respectively.

When these fights come off on Saturday there should be some real fireworks. In the 160 lb. class there are two fights: Robertson vs. Veitch and Greenhouse vs. Greenblatt. The winners will fight it out on Saturday. Stewart Johnson, a newcomer to the ranks who has already demonstrated his fistful ability by giving Bert Light a black eye, will be up against Mathewson in the 175 lb. weight. The winner fights Harry Boyce on Saturday night. It should be a real scrap with plenty of science mixed in. The last boxing bout of the evening is a real drawing card. Roger Wilson and George Maughan, both heavyweights, will fight it out to meet Fred Taylor in the finals. Maughan has a slight advantage in reach and weight but Wilson has a punch like a stone-crusher. Speculation is rife as to who will win. Bill Gentleman states that even money is being offered on Maughan in the Arts Building.

Wrestlers Clash

The Wrestling card is just as exciting. Unfortunately the Wrestlers from MacDonald are unable to reach town before Saturday so that several men will have to fight twice on Saturday night. The first two bouts of the evening will be in the 123 lb. and 144 lb. classes. In the first, Lapin and Wilson, both of whom have shown up extraordinary well this year, will fight it out to meet Berger. In the second, Norwood drew a bye, so that Chipman and Scott will be in the ring tonight. Scott beat Bogue of the Y.M.C.A. last Saturday and looks like a strong contender for a position on the team. The 158 lb. class will feature Randazza and Sooner. The latter proved his ability by eliminating Freedman Wednesday afternoon up at the field house. The 174 pounders Rolik and Gray will fight it out to meet McCush of MacDonald on Saturday night. McCush held Demetri the Provincial champion to a draw last Saturday. Rolik is the only fighting theorist in the B.W.F. since Gillard, of boxing fame has left the scene. The only other wrestling bout on the card is between Ode Garber and Kaufman. It should be full of action because both boys are fast as well as heavy.

Players' Club

It is imperative that all members of the cast of "The Witch" be out at sharp six o'clock for the rehearsal today at Strathcona Hall.

The wrestlers intend to prove their position on the campus this year. They have the men and the talent and Coach Smith says that if the McGill Wrestlers don't win at least half the Intercollegiate bouts, this year, it won't be his fault.

Any one who wants to see real science in boxing or wrestling as well as sporting spirit and plenty of thrills, only has to visit the Union tonight at 8 o'clock. Owing to the fact that the Intercollegiate meet is in Montreal this year, no student coupons will be collected for the interfaculty. Eight P.M. in the Union for the five works.

R.V.C. Basketball

The R.V.C. "White" Junior basketball squad was defeated 20-19 last night at MacDonald College in one of the closest games of the season.

In the opening minutes of the game the Red and White sextette scored four points. Their long passes worked well, but once the Mac team caught on to these they were able to intercept them and evened the score. R.V.C. forged ahead again and at half time had a three point lead, the score being 10-7.

The McGill team playing in a large gymnasium, and rattled by the continuous shouting of the numerous Mac supporters, lost their confidence in the first half of the second period. MacDonald started with a seige of scoring and R.V.C. were unable to make a point until half way through the period. With the score 20-10 against them the red sextette really started to play basketball. It was too late and although they brought their score up to 19 they could not overcome the one point lead of the Green and Gold players.

Joy Oswald was high scorer for R.V.C., accounting for 10 points. Eileen Fairbairn and Peggy Doull played a good steady game. Grace Beer was responsible for 14 of MacDonald's points.

The line-up was:

R.V.C.		MacDonald College
		Forward
J. Oswald	E. Munro
E. Fairbairn	T. Darley

ology, 3 goals to 1 last night in the only class game of the evening. Talies by Ironstone, Mellet and Donohue bulged the theological twine three times to establish a lead that the ministers only shortened by one goal, when Sharkey, ministerial star, stick-handled right through the entire tooth-pulling squad to poke an awful shot past the dent goalie.

By their victory, the Dents are now 1 point behind Law in their section standing. The mighty Law squad still holds away by a scant margin, and it is more than likely that Manager Nichol's legal lights will come up on top for the first time in many years.

ARCH. II VISITS WOOD WORKSHOPS

Montreal Workers Still Carry On Guild Spirit

Craftsmanship in woodwork of the highest order was seen by members of Architecture II, when they visited The Bromsgrove Guild Workshops on Clarke Street last Wednesday. The visit was arranged by Mr. Philip J. Turner of the Department of Architecture, who accompanied the students.

Every operation from the steam kilns where the wood is dried to the finished piece of joinery or cabinet work was demonstrated and explained by Mr. E. L. Wren, the Managing Director, assisted by Mr. H. G. Bes-sell.

Of particular interest to the students was the making of five-ply panel wood, by which method the more expensive woods are used to the best advantage, and the finished work can be guaranteed against splitting.

Other departments that were inspected were the carver, the leather and upholstery shops, in all of which the work of the different craftsmen was inspected under the best conditions.

Freedom Necessary

Mr. Wren, who received his training as an architect gave valuable advice to the students in the preparation of working drawings, urging that a certain freedom should be given to the craftsmen in executing the architects ideas in the manner best fitted to the material in which he was working.

The Bromsgrove Guild, who specialize in work where the highest standard of artistic workmanship is desired, are carrying out the spirit that governs the work of the original guild of art workers at Bromsgrove, near Worcester, England.

After the visit Mr. Turner, on behalf of the students expressed thanks to the Manager of the Company, saying that the visit has been one of the most interesting and instructive of the season.

Major D. Stuart Forbes, M.C., B.Sc., B. Arch, has had a distinguished athletic career. He attended the High School of Montreal and captained the rugby and basketball squads at that institution, as well as acting as president of the Athletic Association. He entered McGill in 1907 and was a member of the science class for four years. He was a member of the senior basketball squad in 1908, 1909 and 1910, and played a prominent part in the winning of the title in 1910. He was also manager and president of the basketball club in 1910 and 1911.

Major Forbes' football career at McGill started with the junior team in '07. He moved up to the senior team in '08, and up to '11 played quarterback and outside wing with a good measure of success.

Graduating from science in '11, Major Forbes returned to take up architecture in '12 and graduated in that department in '15. In the same year he went overseas with the Princess Patricia Canadian Light Infantry. He won the Military Cross for bravery, and was wounded, returning to Canada in 1916. He was assistant professor of architecture before taking over the position of athletic manager in the fall of 1923.

He is president of the Quebec branch of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and is a past president of the Canadian Rugby Union. He is also on the C.R.U. rules commission.

abroad. In Quebec, opportunities for work as dress-stylists, interior decorators, and legal work are increasing very rapidly. Many girls want to do secretarial work.

Thirty-eight thought marriage a career, while nineteen thought it was not. Mrs. Riley believed that a college education was an aid in matrimony, but that an additional short course after leaving College would be an advantage for those entering matrimony.

Mrs. Riley finally advised those present to seek opportunities, and not to let the opportunities come to them. The meeting was then thrown open for general discussion, after which tea was served.
